The Master's Dual Degree program "German and Russian law / Deutsches und Russisches Recht» is a unique educational program in Russia. It started in 2014 as a result of many years of cooperation with the University of Passau (Germany). Siberian Federal University (SibFU) gives an opportunity to study at both Siberian Federal University's Law School (Law School of SibFU) and the University of Passau (Germany).

The program is aimed at further scientific researches and the study of German and Russian law.

Teaching Methods

Throughout the program the Universities provide up-to-date teaching methods and educational technologies such as interactive lectures, role-playing scenarios, video conferences, presentations etc. The Master's program is carried out by highly qualified specialists of the University of Passau and SFU who have degrees of Doctor of Sciences or PhDs, associate professors or professors. The staff is highly experienced in scientific, pedagogical and practical work in Russia, Germany and other countries.

Advantages of the Master's Dual Degree Program

Graduates obtain two degrees in the sphere of Law — Diploma of Siberian Federal University and diploma of the University of Passau (Germany).

Graduates of the program can apply for work in law firms, consulting companies and commercial firms focused on Russian-German relations as well as in international organizations.

Duration of the program — 4 terms:

- German students (first 2 semesters) — at Law School, SibFU;
- Russian students (first 2 semesters) — at the University of Passau;
- Practice (10 weeks in Russia and / or Germany).

Languages:

- Russian language (for German students in Law Institute, SibFU);
- German (for Russian students at the University of Passau).
- Both law students and students of other institutes can take part in the program.
