Training is aimed at familiarizing students with modern methods of study and analysis of socio-cultural, historical and religious issues in the past and present, equipping students with the skills necessary to conduct historical, cultural and religion-related functions in governmental authorities and cultural establishments. Complex of philosophical and social courses, history of art and world religions (Christianity, Eastern religions, Judaism), religious and cultural traditions, methods of teaching world cultures, fundamentals of religious cultures and secular ethics are being studied within the program. Theoretical knowledge gained is further implemented during internship periods: research, pedagogical, and pre-diploma. Most lecturers hold doctorate degrees or PhDs. The graduates can carry out research, expertise and pedagogical work, or take further post-graduate courses.
