The HSE Doctoral School of Management offers a unique doctoral programme in management, including marketing, innovations management, logistics and public administration, at three HSE campuses – in Moscow, St. Petersburg, and Nizhny Novgorod.

The Doctoral School of Management aims to create a unique research environment to train highly qualified experts in management for Russian and international universities, research and consulting companies, as well as government bodies.

The Doctoral School of Management seeks to develop cooperation with international research centers based at HSE, as well as to create a curriculum focused on competencies that also includes special courses developed in line with the international standards in management teaching. In addition, the School plans to conduct regular international research seminars involving HSE professors and scholars from the world's leading universities, as well as a doctoral research seminar at which doctoral students can present papers relating to their studies.
