The course is designed for people willing to acquire full understanding of the language regardless of the pace of speech or complexity of a text.

Students of the course learn to formulate logical presentation, provide it in a style-adapted manner describing the main points with clear arguments and help listeners to understand important aspects of their speech. They also learn to be able to take part in any conversation or discussion using idiomatic expressions and complex turns of speech. Graduates make no efforts reading any type of text whether it is a literary work or a professional article with specific lexicon.

After completing the course graduates can write official letters, reports or articles which contain clear structure that allows a reader to remember the main points. They find it easy to summarize and criticize professional articles and literary works.
