Programme Focus

The programme is aimed at training specialists who are fluent in at least two foreign languages and able to carry out teaching activities. Today the possibilities of such specialists are beyond tradition. Within this programme, a student is not only offered a chance to master two foreign languages up to the Proficiency level. He or she can also get profound knowledge of intercultural communication, psychology, pedagogy and methodology of foreign languages teaching as well as theoretical phonetics and grammar, lexicology, stylistics and comparative-historical and typological linguistics.

Programme advantages

- Lectures, seminars and written papers are designed to guide the students in learning to apply theoretical knowledge to concrete studies of their future profession.
- The students of the programme work with academic staff who are at the leading edge of research, so that the excitement of pioneering ideas is conveyed. High-quality education is based on high-quality research that covers the study of the whole spectrum of disciplines – from the arts and humanities to sciences.
- The benefit of being a member of a large, vibrant and intellectually curious student body helps to spend time productively and pleasantly.
- The Institute has traditionally enjoyed close links with its colleagues both at home and abroad.

Graduates' expertise and career opportunities

The programme graduates will be able to get a prestigious job in the leading Russian and foreign educational institutions as specialists in different methods and techniques of teaching foreign languages. They can also apply their knowledge in the spheres of interpersonal ties in foreign languages, or organization and management of different processes, or elimination of conflicts and disagreements in negotiations, etc. They certainly can dig deeper into the chosen field and continue their education.
