The training is carried out in information and methodological cooperation with the faculties and the departments of geology of the Russian universities following classical university programs.

The students specialize in applied geology and geophysics; they acquire contemporary knowledge of the Earth's deep structure, distribution pattern of mineral resources in the Earth's crust, prospecting methods and reserve calculations. Everything that allows the students successfully solve the problems arising from exploration of natural objects.

The practical and on-the-job training is organized all around the world and upon the completion of their studies the students are fit to work in geological expeditions, at mining enterprises.
