The Master's Programme in Strategic Management in Logistics is an innovative educational product aimed at training strategic-level logistics specialists. The programme is focused on training the highest-qualified logistics specialists in Russia – universal logistical managers, supply chain coordinators, analysts and researchers who understand the international methods of strategic management in company logistics on the basis of the integral concept of logistics and the use of innovative approaches from supply chain management theory.

The course offers a modern concept of solving strategic tasks both at the level of a company's logistics department and at the level of the managerial structure of the supply chain. The knowledge and skills received in this master's course will allow graduates to work in logistics departments on strategic planning and organizational development and in analytical departments and consulting companies.
