This course aims to provide you with the knowledge of the human psyche, human personality and behaviour. It will help you to master effective ways of communication and develop professional abilities. You will develop skills in psychological counselling, psychotherapy and psychological analysis. This knowledge will help you understand the way human consciousness works, predict and explain human behaviour in various situations.

Practising teachers will share their experiences in the field and the secrets of the profession. Studying takes place in various formats, such as case studies, workshops and work-like tasks that simulate real situations. Participating in professional competitions will allow you to improve your networking skills and plan your professional development. Psychologists have a wide range of options for future employment, such as social and public institutions as well as the commercial sector and administrative bodies. Graduates of this course can find employment in the biggest Russian and international companies, research and consulting centres.
