The benefits of choosing a speciality "Economic Security" Economic Security of Business (School of public administration and entrepreneurship, Institute of economy and management, UrFU)

- Security is relevant at all times. In the era of digital technologies, the labor market is being transformed. Many professions, both working and intellectual, become obsolete and disappear, giving way to emerging new ones. But the demand for specialists in economic security is growing.
- Demand in the labor market is 100%. By the fifth year, all students are employed and work in the financial and economic divisions and economic security services of various enterprises and public authorities, financial and credit institutions, consulting and audit companies.
- Classical five-year education (specialty). Specialty – a complete higher education, after which you can immediately enter graduate school (without studying for a master's degree). In comparison with a bachelor's degree, the specialty opens up a wider range of employment opportunities. The specialist's diploma is highly valued on the Russian labor market. In professional standards, the specialty, along with the master's degree, occupy a higher level of qualification than the bachelor's degree.
- High salary. The average salary of economic security specialists is 20% higher than the average salary in Russia.
- The teaching staff is the key to successful learning. The teaching staff organically combines both academic staff (doctors, candidates of science) and highly qualified practitioners in various fields.
- A specialist in business economic security is a combination of skills in Economics, Finance, management, and law.
